Welcome to CIPR International, the network for professional communicators who work internationally.

Our mission is to act both as a supportive membership organisation and a centre of excellence to public relations practitioners around the globe.

The group brings together the many different sectors within the international communications industry to network, discuss, and learn from each other about the issues facing communicators working internationally today. We do this by holding face-to-face events as well as online meetings so that our colleagues overseas can take part.

We know that some of you operate under challenging and often difficult circumstances in your local marketplace and it can sometimes seem that there is nowhere to turn to obtain the help or support you require. To those of you in this situation we say 'you are not alone' and encourage you to join us.

If you are already a member we hope you will find the site interesting and informative. If you are not, please consider joining this dynamic group!

For details of how to join or to contact us about an idea or question you have, please write to us at international@cipr.co.uk. We look forward to welcoming you.
